

William Marjerison: Bass player of famous acid jazz group, "Willy and the J-Five."

Lauren Massad: Moves to Nashville and becomes number one country and western singer.

Yuichi Matsuyama: Becomes a stunt double for "Predator 3."

David McCagg: Becomes a real papa after his hit band "The Remains of All That Remains" debuts.

Nicole McCorquodale: Invents a new line of bath "accessories" and becomes commander of the world's armed forces under the name Rambette: Aussie Girl.

James Minahan: Wins lottery, but goes broke due to constant trips to ramen and yakitori stands.

Michio Montgomery: Starts new fashion trend with his sixty ways to brush your eyebrows, the favorite being the "Mt. Fuji Brow."

Carol Morrow: Writes a best selling novel titled "Dancing 101, How to Get Your Groove On."

Nykkol Mozee: Becomes a business executive and starts compulsory uniform of loose socks and plaid skirts.

Yumiko Murakami: Surprisingly becomes a political specialist in Japan; appointed as Koizumi's fifth female foreign minister.

Eisuke Nakajima: Revolutionizes Kyogen by incorporating modern drum techniques into his performances.

Nozomi Naoi: After achieving her dreams, settles down to be an obaasan who talks for hours with her neighbors.

Sarah Naouri: Becomes goat farmer and owner of the ranch, "Dun Clubbin'."

Yujin Narita: Helps Japan beat Mexico in World Cup by stealing Mexico's playbook.

Maya Norvel: After launching top rated talk show, challenges Oprah in celebrity singing match and wins hands down.

Kelly O'Brien: First person required to have a police licence to carry a lethal concealed hockey stick.

Takayoshi Ohki: Has the first surgically implanted camera which enables him to film a new show for MTV called "Taka's Real World."

Maya Okamoto: Starts worldwide birthdayorganizer.com, but forgets to add her own birthday.

Evan Palsson: Buys the Mariners, then sells them to pay for his wedding to the moo moo shabushabu waitress.

John Perriton: Wins a million dollars in Survivor after his back flips grant him immunity in the final challenge.

Andrew Person: Opens up restaurant called "Non-Foody Foods," and has three items on the menu: ham sandwich, nacho's, and Gummy Bears.

Ashley Phillips: Becomes the ideal mother who puts Martha Stewart out of business, while finally succumbing to her life-long desire to dress in red leather and go to raves.

Raquist Pramanik: Smashes Andy Roddick in his newly invented sport, "Total Brain Tennis."

Eben Reckord: Last seen climbing Tokyo Tower after graduation, mumbling something about political slogans and circle hierarchy..no weapons.

Annie Reuben: Writes bestselling book titled "The Best and Worst Days of My Life," and succeeds in adding the word, "chillax" to the Oxford English Dictionary.

Natsume Saito: Becomes first medical test subject for cell phone implants but runs away at the last moment.

Lucas Sakurai: Wins Nobel Prize after experiment with parabolic cookers revolutionizes microwaveable TV dinners.

Magnus Sandberg: Becomes wall-street broker who designs three-piece suit and walks the streets barefooted.

Simen Sandvaer: Buys Pylon and changes the name of the club to Simon Says.

Shizuka Scott: Years from now is found eating avocados in New Zealand with a restaurant called "Shizzlers."

Christina Shepherd: On her second day of work at Mary Kay gets promoted to the position of CEO.

Maiko Shimazaki: Becomes fashion designer for the purposes of free clothes and her free pick of male models.

Emily Siedell: Forces the Guinness Book of World Records out of business, as she holds the record for practically everything.

Cara Silverman: Becomes the next Austin Powers spy chick and Britney influenced BSB back-up dancer, called "Polly Poms Poms."

Danica Sipe: Abandons the high life to become Sister Mary Sipe and lead a life of complete celibacy.

Jennifer Somers: Marries Jeff Hardy and becomes pro WWF wrestler under the name, "Princess Aladdin."

Paul Stephanus: Decides to retire his accounting job and returns to his high school days of wearing blue tights and saving the world.

Thomas Steranko: Stars in the blockbuster hit, "Thomas the Tank Engine."

Tabasa Tabuchi: Moves to Kingston to become a rastafarian.

Lina Takahashi: Wins the "best mother on earth" contest, barely nudging out Carol Brady.

Miki Takahashima-Ryo: Finishes BU and starts a new children's television show called the "Miki Mouse Club."

Mito Takeshita: Loses her job at the Speedo factory because she forgets to go on her first day of work.

Hiroyuki Tanaka: Tops the J-rap chart as Homie-T with hit single "Bling-bling."

Meredith Tennent: Undermines

the beef industry and forces McDonald's to sell the new animal friendly "McMeddy" Burger.

Sheldon Theriault: Costco dominates the world; Sheldon sits on the throne.

Amita Tomkoria: Becomes head of UNICEF and entertains colleagues by laughing at her own jokes.

Jessica Torok: Can't decide whether to buy out Diet Coke or J Crew, so instead starts a cellphone co., with the slogan, "The longer you lose it, the less you pay."

Mitsuhiko Tsukimoto: Would have won Nobel Prize as a Stanford scientist if he wouldn't have forgotten the +C in his formula for super-enriched flubber.

Anna Tuttle: Wins US

presidential election with the slogan "Cheer me on," after becoming friends with everyone.

Aki Uchida: Wins first prize in Carlton raffle and gets to wrestle Jesse Ventura.

Lisa Ward: Her secret finally revealed: she's been stealing laughing gas from her dad's office all these years.

David Weber: Opens new chain of 21st century disco clubs called "David's Disco-rama."

Ashley Westbrook: Drops out of Hamilton to become roadie and die-hard follower of Ani diFranco.

Emilie Yamazawa: Emerges as Belgium's answer to Britney Spears, topping charts and performing to sold-out crowds.

Jeongmi Yang: Comes back to ASIJ to become the cutest head cheerleading coach in history.

Matthew Yauch: Becomes a millionaire after his reformed band Shut-up Sean shuts up the competition.

Shinnosuke Yokota: The next Ichiro of baseball, "Shin-Ichiro."

Sachiko Yoneyama: Opens the first Japanese restaurant at Haverford called "Sushiko."

Eri Yoshida: Becomes world-class saxophonist, knocking Kenny G off the charts forever.